

Líderes Campesinas

¡Somos Líderes, Somos Campesinas!

For decades, the hard work of campesinas (farmworker women) has built and fed California. Líderes Campesinas is a growing movement where we come together to advocate for and win what our communities need.

We build on the long legacy of women using organizing, outreach, and grassroots mobilization to improve the lives of farmworker communities. Our origins stretch back to 1988 in the Coachella Valley: due to immigration status, lack of formal education, and abusive work conditions, women were susceptible to violence in the fields and in their homes. Using theater and storytelling as educational tools, these women came together to raise awareness about their rights and connected (more) women to resources to disrupt the violence.

Now, we are a statewide network of powerful advocates based in sixteen farm working communities where we impact thousands of women and their families. We organize to create healthier working conditions, safer environments, and engaged women leaders. Líderes Campesinas focuses on the inherent power and leadership of farmworker women because when we invest in them, we take care of entire families and communities.

The mission of Líderes Campesinas is to strengthen the leadership of farmworker women and youth so that they can be agents of economic, social and political change and ensure their human rights.

How Can You Support Our Work?

We are currently raising funds for our next convening which will take place in April 2024 in Sacramento, our first in 20 years. It will be a 3-Day healing convening, focused on radical Love and Power.

Farm-working women across California will gather in one place to participate in workshops and discussions regarding the state of farmworkers, agriculture, and various other social issues concerning the farm-working community.

We will also march to the state capitol and meet with our state representatives expressing the needs, concerns, and hopes of farmworkers. Our voices will be heard!

We are working to raise $300,000 for this event!

We have 400 members and staff across the state. The cost of bringing 1 woman or girl to our convening is about $750 dollars, which includes the cost of lodging, transportation, meals, and other event related expenses.

You all can help make this dream a reality!

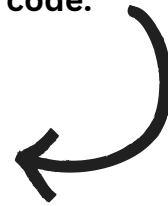

Contact us if you have a different idea in mind. We're happy to explore a partnership that works for all of us.
